The Political Pot Boils

The Selectmen and town manager broke bread with West Andover residents Monday night at the annual pot luck supper served by the West Andover Community Assn. After some official discussion of the Warrant and the 1967 budget, candidates had their chance. During part of the evening they mixed with residents for informal politicking, caught here by the candid camera. Incumbent Robert A. Watters of the Board of Selectmen, second from left, explains his views to a West Andoverite; Center Photo - Candidates Ernest N. Hall, left and Dr. Richard Katz shake hands with Michael Brennan, himself a former candidate; Far right - Committeeman William A. Doherty talks about school affairs with one of the hostesses. (Cole)

A sweeping immunization program to completely eradicate childhood communicable diseases in Massachusetts beginning with two-month-old babies has been announced by Gov. John A. Volpe. The unprecedented medical campaign will be carried out on a community level with $250,000 going directly to city and town health departments to handle the task.

In addition, there will be in-depth discussion of major warrant articles which have not already been widely publicized in our news columns.

2000 Aging Andoverites Are Queried

Early in February, Andover's Council on Aging sent out approximately 2000 questionnaires to residents who are 60 years of age and over, asking them what sort of programs for senior citizens they would like to see established.

Several hundred have already been returned and others are expected, according to Atty. Edward A. Gordon, chairman. They will be perused in advance of April 1 when the Council has invited senior citizens to meet at Central Ele-

Fin Com Approves Green Area Article

The Finance Committee has approved the two major money articles in the 1967 Warrant, one of which calls for floating a $250,000 bond issue for the purchase of conservation lands.

The Watchdog committee is also recommending Town Meeting approval of a $750,000 article for construction of a new and larger Bancroft reservoir.

The Fin Com sat down with the Selectmen Tuesday to discuss these and other key budget items with a view to settling on a figure for the annual transfer from free cash to reduce the tax rate. It is still uncertain, however, whether the '67 increase will come to $3 or $4 over the current rate of $33 per thousand.

The Selectmen have recommended to the Fin Com that its final recommendation to voters on this question be developed with a view to leaving no less than $500,000 in the free cash pot as a nest egg for 1968 when increased school expenses and debt service are expected to add another $500,000 to the municipal budget.

The town accountant's office is working now to tighten up estimates for revenue surplus. If the Fin Com is in a position to recommend a transfer of as much as $615,000 from free cash, at the same time reserving the $500,000 stipulated by the Selectmen, the tax rate

Officers of Massachusetts chapters of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, the American Bar Assn., National Society of Public Accountants and other professional groups will attend the dedication ceremonies, along with IRS officials and others.

Principal speaker at the ceremonies will be the Honorable Joseph W. Barr, Under Secretary of the Treasury. Sheldon S. Cohen, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, also will speak. Senators and Representatives from the six New England states and the state of New York, all served by the new center, have been invited to attend the dedication.

ABC Background, Part II

106 Schools Enroll Disadvantaged

(A TOWNSMAN News Feature)

ABC, a national education program for talented, disadvantaged youth exists today because a group of private school headmasters were not content to continue trying to prepare young people for a multi-layered world in a virtual social vacuum.

The plan of action they developed, the Independent Schools Talent Search Program, was initially directed toward minority youngsters who already had something going for them - some academic achievement perhaps, or a pair of middle class parents and a decent home life.

The program was still little more than an embryo when Dartmouth College volunteered to set up a summer program to give students accepted by Talent Search schools A Better Chance, a transitional period between two totally different environments. The idea was to not only get to know the students, identify their strengths and weaknesses and work to prepare them for a rigorous academic program, but to give the students themselves a chance to find out what it would be like to live away from home and compete in a new world.

It was at this point that the philosophy behind the Independent Schools program began to shift. The catalyst was James Simmons executive director for ISTS, himself a Negro.

Remembering his own background as a boy in New York City, bright but ill-advised by school counselors who tried to fit him into a mold of their design, Simmons talked to the founders of the program about the fate of the disadvantaged young who have talent but never an opportunity to manifest it.

Can we focus ABC on this group?, he asked.

"Will you tentatively accept the more clearly disadvantaged, 'risk' kind of kid with the understanding that he must measure up at Dartmouth for the acceptance to stand up?"

This was the beginning, the summer of 1964.

A few months later Sargent Shriver came around to ask if there was anything the Office of Economic Opportunity could do and in the spring of 1965 the Federal Government allocated $376,000 to support ABC students at the rate of $2500 per year for three years. In the third year of the program, OEO agreed to support 300 of the 435 students signed for ABC.

This school term ABC has 672 students enrolled, all but ten in 106 independent schools, and 425 of them are new to the program this academic year.

Thirteen of the first 64 students in the ABC program have graduated from high school and all 13 have qualified for college. "So our batting average for the first group is 1000," Jim Simmons said when interviewed here recently in his home on School Street.

The program's attrition rate is low, but a few students sever connections each year. Sometimes they leave because Talent Search or school officials feel it is desirable. Sometimes they leave because they are unable to adjust; and sometimes it is the parents who cannot adjust. For example one southern mother withdrew her boy from Exeter Academy because he went home for the Christmas holidays with a sore throat and she chose to conclude that this meant he could not adjust to the cold New Hampshire climate.

The students enrolled achieve at various levels. A number are honor students, but the majority perform as average students.

And just as Simmons had expected, Talent Search has turned up some rare youngsters who would likely never have amounted to a hill of beans without ABC help. One Richmond, Va. boy proved so brilliant in math that the prep school where he was enrolled could no longer challenge him so arrangements were made for him to take math courses at a nearby college. Prior to his ABC experience, there had never been any indication that he had a particular aptitude for mathematics.

Each student in the program is given a $250 contingency fund for clothes and extras and the school he attends augments this in addition to making up the difference between what the ABC budget provides for tuition and actual costs. In some instances students at the prep schools or alumni groups raise funds for this purpose instead of giving class gifts to the school etc.

This year Talent Search is spending a total of 1.5 million scholarship dollars and providing two offices and administrative services for something like $140,000. And, says Simmons, we have a lot of volunteer help.

Last year 65% of the ABC students were Negro and 35% non-Negro. Of this latter group, 15% were White, 7% Indian and the remainder Puerto Rican, Mexican American etc.

Simmons is working toward the time when the program can support a private school enrollment of 1200. And he is casting an eye also toward good public school facilities because there are more students who deserve a chance than there are places to enroll them.

This year, as an experiment, ABC has eight boys in the Hanover, N. H. high school. They are living together with teacher supervision in the hope that they can preserve their identity. It is ABC's hope that the youngsters it educates will eventually assume leadership positions that will benefit their own peoples. If they become too absorbed in another culture, this cannot be expected to happen.

The man who directs the program understands the problems of ABC students because they were once his problems.

Simmons began his education in the public schools of New York City where he was advised by a junior high school counselor to drop the idea of a high school diploma and get a High School of Commerce education.

It took just one year of accounting and bookkeeping to convince young Simmons that he was headed in the wrong direction so he joined the Navy and started what he expected would lead to a military career.

But his plans changed again the day it was announced that he had out-scored all his classmates in a Navy Supply Corps course. It was his first academic honor.

He left the Navy and went to Virginia to live with his grandmother and re-enter high school at 22 years of age. Not long after he was registered at Hampton Institute, not because he had a high school diploma but because he managed to score exceptionally well on entrance examinations without one.

After graduation, Simmons spent five years as a teacher and then went back to the institute as an associate dean of men.

From here he went on to a Fellowship at Harvard, a master's degree and a professor who had heard about the Independent Schools Talent Search program.

Jim Simmons says he was drawn to the idea that has become ABC because of his own background.

It made me think of all the kids who went to school with me who were brighter than me who were really doing nothing because someone else made a decision that set the course of their life, he explains.

Editor's Note: The first installment of this feature, which relates to a program that will be discussed at Town Meeting, appeared in the Feb. 16 issue.

An estimated minimum of 150,000 infants, children and parents will be inoculated through a total of 50,000 family home visits from local health department nurses over the next year. The program starts immediately.

The Arlington Trust Company, Lawrence, Massachusetts which reported deposits of $34,954,077 on Dec. 31, gained 42 places in its standing among the 500 largest commercial banks in the United States during 1966 and now ranks as 441st largest in size. Deposits of the bank totaled $77,702,960 a year ago. This is revealed in the 1967 Annual Roll Call of the 500 Largest Banks in the United States published by the daily AMERICAN BANKER of New York, which is the trade newspaper of the banking business. There are approximately 13,500 banks in the United States.

The Argentine students were interested in the financial organization of Phillips Academy which admits boys solely on the basis of their qualifications and is able to provide scholarship aid for those unable to pay tuition and board fees. The visitors felt that the school was perhaps as selective in its student body, but added that its state supported.

Cristian Ernst also commented that in Argentina, students specialize earlier in their educational careers than do American youngsters. Three of the four Argentine students, although not yet in universities, are already taking courses leading to careers in engineering and are enrolled in a special division of the Colegio Nacional which concentrates in science and mathematics.

The boys found that the facilities and courses they observed at were similar to theirs at Colegio, but seemed surprised Andover boys had access to a computer and were already learning programming techniques.

Argentine Students Phillips Academy

For three days last week, Phillips Academy played host to four Argentine students from the Colegio Nacional de Buenos Aires who are visiting schools and colleges across the country on a U.S. State Department sponsored tour.

According to the four Argentine boys, aged 17 and 18, their visit to P.A. was the first opportunity they had been given to take an active part in the academic and extracurricular activities of an American school. Before coming to Andover, they had been in Washington, D. C. and then in Boston where they briefly visited Harvard University and Northeastern University.

Each Argentine student was a guest of a Spanish speaking Academy boy and lived in his host's dormitory, ate meals in the student dining hall, and attended classes and athletic events. The four visitors were selected by officials at the U. S. Embassy in Buenos Aires from a group of students of the Colegio Nacional, a highly competitive public high school which allows its graduates to enter directly in the university without making entrance examinations. Each of the boys is a "celador" in his home school, an honor position which involves the supervision of a division of young students. All of the Argentine students speak English, and one is certified as an English teacher.

According to the celadores, purpose of their three week tour is to learn something of the North American way of life, but for faculty and students at the Academy, this visit offered a chance to gain insights into Argentine politics and economics from four intelligent and highly articulate young men.

One of the main differences Argentines observed between high school aged students in the U.S. and Argentina was that Argentine students feel more urgently involved in the political development of their country.

One pointed out that because problems his government is encountering in industrial and technological development, young people seeking careers in engineering, as well as in other professional fields, frequently find there are not enough positions open to them. They therefore leave Argentina, reluctantly, to find jobs. Another added that this situation is a critical factor in involving students in political activity and giving them a sense of importance in determining the future of their country.

The Argentine students were interested in the financial organization of Phillips Academy which admits boys solely on the basis of their qualifications and is able to provide scholarship aid for those unable to pay tuition and board fees. also found that the smaller class size at P.A. and the absence of girls created an atmosphere which prompted more informal and spontaneous classroom discussion.

From Andover, the boys and their guide flew to Springfield, Ill., and Chicago, and from there West where they planned to visit more secondary schools, public and private, as well as universities and some factories.

Law Asked

Twelfth District Rep. James P. Hurrell has introduced a bill in Boston which would prevent residents from registering motor vehicles until after all excise tax payments due had been paid.

Appearing before the Committee on Taxation last week, Hurrell pointed out that he is not taking a stand on reducing the excise tax or extending the payment period. Hurrell said, "If we are going to have an excise tax on automobiles and trailers then all people should be treated equal and be required to pay the tax. Many cities and towns of the commonwealth are losing large sums of money because the excise tax goes directly to the local communities and aids in tax relief."

Recorded in favor of Hurrell's bill were Rep. William Longworth of Methuen and Registrar of Motor Vehicles Richard E. McLaughlin.

Boy Scouts Will Speak

Steve Bull and John Danforth of Boy Scout Troop 77 will speak on "The Value of Merit Badges" at the Lawrence Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting at Andover Country Club today, winding up a program of events related to Boy Scout Week.

During Boy Scout Week itself, the West Parish Church troop participated in the following activities:

Eagle Scout David Gilmore took part in an interview broadcast on Scouting.

On the 10th and 11th, the troop represented the town in an overnight campout and Scouting demonstration on the West Parish Green in front of the Church. This was an honor bestowed upon the troop by the Essex County Council because of the staying power exhibited by the troop during the last Fall Camporee. This weekend was a complete washout since it poured continuously. Troop 77 was the only troop to remain in their campsite over the complete weekend. On Saturday, Cub packs in Andover visited the campout and witnessed demonstrations in first aid, cooking, axmanship, firemanship, tenting, knot tying and tower building. That evening the annual ham and bean supper was held followed by a slide show on Camp Onway for the benefit of the parents in attendance. This was followed with a court of honor with the following awards made:

Tenderfoot - David Longendorfer, Wayne Foulkes, Jay Penick;

Freije; Eagle - David Gilmore.

GUY B. HOWE, JR.

Plato's Republic" Raises Weighty And Ageless Issues

Reason and science; how are they related and how do they affect each other and who is "fit" to rule over others, are some of the knotty topics raised by Plato's REPUBLIC, the book for discussion by members of the Great Books group on Tuesday evening, Feb. 28, at 7:30 p.m.

Plato states the views of Socrates and members of the group will make their own observations. They will come to some conclusions, exchanging their views. Some of the same problems still exist today that were pinpointed in THE REPUBLIC several hundred years BC. The public is welcome to join this discussion and those that will follow.

Fun & Fantasy

Story hour on Feb. 23 at 3:30 in the Children's room will be based on a theme of fun and fantasy. Miss Elizabeth Russell, supervisor of work with children, has chosen three stories from THIRTEEN DANISH TALES, retold by Mary Hatch. They are: "The Talking Pot," "The Wonderful Knapsack," and "Doctor and Detective Too."

The following Thursday, March 2, the program for school-age boys and girls will be on film with the showing of CIRCUS ANIMALS, I'VE BEEN THERE IN A BOOK, and JENNY'S BIRTHDAY.

Young Books

"Youngsters" (books) for Oldsters" is the theme of the new exhibit of books in the case opposite the charging desk on the main floor of the adult department. There are children's books for family reading and for nostalgic browsing for anyone who may have regretted putting away the books of childhood with other childish things upon becoming a man, or woman.

Included are titles of perennial delight that parents still want to share with their own children and a collection of new books from the children's room that will be new and refreshing to parents, grandparents and others who think of themselves as the young in heart. This includes most of us, of course! So, whether you are looking ahead, looking back, or just need a good book for a young person of your acquaintance, look over the "Youngsters" for Oldsters."

Requested Titles

Now we have the following books our borrowers asked us to buy - among the many which are on the reserve list. Most will require that you fill in a card at the circulation desk in order to have a turn at reading them soon.

STILL WE CAN HOPE - Sizoo (The messages here are not tranquilizers - they stir the conscience, challenge, and finally, reassure)

IT HAS ITS CHARMS - Morton (From Nebraska to the old Transcendentalist to the New Yorker and back to Boston with the Atlantic - it is an odyssey)

EVERYTHING BUT MONEY - Levenson (Sam recalls his boyhood as a "life of plenty" in the family's cramped New York tenement - plenty of family, neighbors, boarders, books, music, weddings, illnesses, dogs, hope. . .)

SAVING LIVES

The intelligent use of new drugs has assisted in saving countless lives during the past thirty years. Because of the economic status of some sick people, the cost of these drugs has in some cases been burdensome. But, the reduction of prolonged periods of hospitalization, medical care and rehabilitation has often led to a reduction in the total cost of medical care.

The team that has saved these lives and reduced the total cost of medical care is composed of your physician, the registered pharmacist who dispenses his prescription and the manufacturer of ethical pharmaceuticals whose research and marketing know-how have provided the necessary implements.

By patronizing our prescription department, you may be assured of the most dedicated attention to the care of your health.

It would add a lot to domestic harmony if husbands could understand that when a wife buys on credit she is displaying her confidence in her husband.

Panelists To Explain ABC

Two more public meetings will be held on the ABC (A Better Chance) Program to admit 10 underprivileged boys to Andover High School in September, 1967, from areas outside of Andover. At the request of the School Committee to fully inform the town about the details of the program, ABC will present a panel discussion on the next two Monday evenings, at 8 p.m. The first one will be at the Central School Auditorium on Feb. 27, and the second at the Sanborn School auditorium on March 6.

"We hope that anyone who has any question whatsoever about our program will come to one or both of these meetings," said Robert Klie, local ABC chairman. "For those who can't come," Klie added,

"we are making a mailing early in March to all registered voters explaining the basic points of the program."

Among the panelists at the two public meetings will be Rev. Paul T. Keyes, Mrs. Thayer Warshaw, and James Simmons, executive director of the ABC program. Also at both meetings, one or more persons from Hanover, N. H., will be on hand to tell how the program is doing in their public high school.

Klie also announced the names of 15 more members of the ABC local advisory committee. They are: Philip K. Allen, Miss Mary S. Angus, Rev. Robert E. Bosdorf, Rev. J. Allyn Bradford, Roger Collins, Rev. John Crocker, Mrs. David L. Darling, Rev. Thomas S. Delpho, Dr. Douglas M. Dunbar, Mrs. John D. Edmonds, Rev. Hartland H. Gifford, C. Lincoln Giles, William H. Editorial Comment

The Long View

Taking the long view is not a habit in Andover, but the Finance Committee has just announced a decision that looks way beyond today.

In advocating Town Meeting approval of $250,000 bond issue to support a program of land acquisition for conservation purposes, the Watchdogs have parted company with those who consistently regard it as prudent to skimp today and let someone else worry about tomorrow.

The logic of their position is clear.

The pay-as-you-go concept of financing conservation programs would have been great for Andover had she concerned herself with this problem 20 years ago. But now, with land disappearing at an alarming rate, forcing the price of what remains ever higher, the town would be as the boy with his finger in the dyke if it tried to fight off the tide with $10,000 here and $15,000 there.

The Finance Committee has agreed with the Conservation Commission and the town manager that it makes sense to get some major acquisitions under our belt before it is too late.

Some arguments can be made in support of this view by playing with figures to show that for every $100,000 the town invests in conservation it saves in tax dollars that would have to be collected for schools and other municipal services if the land went for home construction instead. This is a valid argument up to a point, even though some of the sort of land bought for conservation would never be approved for building purposes in Andover. It is equally true that preserving green areas tends to boost tax revenues because houses located near to attractive green lands are certain to be more valuable.

But neither of these is the major reason for supporting municipal acquisition of wooded hills, leafy swamps and green lands abutting sparkling ponds.

The real reason for trying to preserve something of the natural grandeur of a community like Andover is to guarantee that its future inhabitants will have some place to stretch their legs, somewhere to turn to escape concrete and asphalt and hordes of people. If the psychiatrists are right, man's very sanity may depend upon his being able to withdraw periodically from an increasingly urban atmosphere to regenerate.

This is what we owe to future generations and it is inconceivable that taxpayers who will live here over the next 20 years will resent the burden of a bonded debt for this purpose.

Room For Trees

The experiment with removal of parking meters on Main Street has worked well enough to encourage the belief that Andover drivers may be considerate enough to turn over street-side parking spaces at a rate that will eliminate the need for meters.

Acting on this belief, the Selectmen have authorized the removal of side street meters as well. This means that a total of 216 formerly metered spaces are now available free of charge in downtown Andover. Presumably they are available for the short-term shopper, the resident with a utility bill to pay or a bank deposit to drop off. Metered space for the long-term shopper is to be maintained in the municipal parking lot.

There will be control. The streets will be posted for one hour parking and police checks will be made to enforce the regulation. And this is the way it will be unless store clerks and secretaries etc. slip into the habit of monopolizing curb parking, forcing the Selectmen to reconsider.

The public is urged to be on its best behavior. If things go well the manager will have no reason to hesitate in the spring when the standards for the meters are to be pulled out.

And with them out of the way, there should be room for the trees we keep talking about planting along Main Street.

What Our Readers Say

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN
Campanelli, Inc. is trying to have 20.3 acres of land between Elm St., Westwind Road and Tanglewood Lane rezoned from Single Residence B to Residence District APT-Apartment. This area was originally laid out last year by Campanelli Inc. for 22 private homes but they now propose to erect 198 apartment units instead. This property was described in an article in a Lawrence newspaper Feb. 13 as being located off Elm St. near Merrimack College. This has led most readers to think this land was located to the south and east of Elm St. adjacent to some of the main campus buildings. In fact it is on the opposite side of Elm St. and is physically closer to the Shipman Road - Cheever Circle area than to Merrimack College proper.

This parcel of land is surrounded on three sides by single residence private homes. To my knowledge, no land has ever been rezoned in Andover for commercial apartments where the periphery was virtually surrounded by private homes. This land is so effectively isolated from other property considered for apartments that access to these 198 units is proposed to go through a line of single residence homes onto Elm St. via narrow rights of way.

Since this is such an obvious case of improper zoning, it will undoubtedly be defeated at the town meeting March 11th but let us hope that it will be so overwhelmingly defeated that future land developers will get the message that Andover is not a soft touch.

FIN COM APPROVES

should level at $36. If they are in a position to recommend only a $500,000 transfer, the tax rate should come in at $37.

The decision on this recommendation will be made Thursday afternoon after the Finance Committee has its final budget session with school officials.

Robert Henderson, Fin Com chairman, reports that his committee has trimmed roughly $320,000 from the $7,097,267 budget request submitted by Town Manager Richard J. Bowen. Only about $54,000 of this was trimmed from the school department budget, and most of this in areas where schoolmen had budgeted a full year's salary for personnel that will not be hired until later in the year.

In explaining the committee's approval of a bond issue for purchase of lands recommended by the Conservation Commission, Henderson said the committee felt that in view of the rapid growth of the community, it would be better for the town to act now and spread the debt than to delay acquisitions for annual appropriations.

Henderson reports that the Fin Com is recommending against the five additional police officers requested by the manager and police chief. It will give its approval to budgeting for three men, however, plus a request for an additional cruiser. Manager Bowen said this week that he will stick with his request for five men and there is a possibility that the majority of the Board of Selectmen will agree to support him on this item.

The Selectmen have not yet settled on an official position on either of the two major money articles now approved by the Finance Committee.

The board gave what was described as "tacit" approval to the $250,000 bonded debt conservation article Tuesday night, but no official vote was recorded. In previous discussions Selectman Roger Collins has opposed bonding for conservation purposes and has suggested instead that annual appropriations of $15,000 be sought. Selectman Sidney P. White has suggested that the Selectmen recommend a tax-supported appropriation of $50,000.

The Selectmen also have yet to take an official position on the Bancroft reservoir project, though some members have gone on record in favor of the article calling for construction of the 1.6 million gallon reservoir.

Both the manager and Water Supt. Donald C. Bassett have given strong support to the reservoir proposal which both say is necessary to maintain satisfactory service and provide for fire prevention needs in the areas served by the reservoir - the central part of town including the business district, Shawsheen and Ballardvale.

During the conference session Tuesday the two boards discussed, a request from the Industrial Development Commission that further consideration be given to budgeting for an assistant to Manager Bowen to give him time for doing some industrial development planning and contact work. As before, the majority of the Selectmen vetoed this idea.

The collective thinking of the group meeting Tuesday was that the Commission should be encouraged to spend the $4250 allocated for its program in the best possible way, feeling free to request additional funds from the Finance Committee during the year if necessary.

As of Jan. 27, Andover residents had contributed $5,001.55 to the 1966 Christmas Seal Drive, an increase of $385.75 over contributions made in 1965.

Down The Years

75 Years Ago - February, 1892

Mrs. E. F. Cole has returned from Barrington, N. H. with her niece Miss Laura Jewel who is staying at the home of J. F. Cole.

The western sky was suffused with a vivid red glow, growing in intensity and brilliance until it was generally accepted (Saturday evening) to be the reflection of a great fire by a number who saw it. But the true character of the display became revealed when the green light of the ordinary Northern lights appeared flashing beneath the rose tints and great white flames shot up through the centre to the zenith.

There are two ways of looking at the matter of an addition to the Punched School building. The one way like the man who takes all that is given to him and grumbles because it is not more, and the other like the man who takes what is given to him and gladly makes it more. Punched School as an educational institution has been a great power and force in the town... until today the demand for more room is imperative, if it shall continue to grow.

50 Years Ago - February, 1917

Miss Bertha Cuthill is ill with diphtheria at her home on High Street. She missed for the first time in eight years the session of the Bible School at Free Church last Sunday.

At a meeting of the directors of the Tyer Rubber Co. held Monday the following officers were chosen: Henry G. Tyer, president; Frederick H. Jones, treasurer; Harry H. Noyes, clerk; board of directors: George Abbot, Frank T. Carlton, Franklin H. Grier, Frederick H. Jones, Nathaniel Stevens, Frederick W. Thomas and Henry G. Tyer.

Arthur Cummings of this town, of the U. S. Navy, has been promoted to the rank of chief gunner with the grade of second lieutenant.

What a foolish thing the recent sugar flurry was and we may speak from some knowledge of it because it apparently began in this immediate neighborhood. The dealers were low in stock because shipments had been coming through slow. The public found it out, and within twenty-four hours the price had gone from 7-1/2 cents a pound to 20 odd cents. To the credit of the Andover dealers, there is no record that they had any part in this advance.

West School Concert Set

The West School orchestra and glee club will present a concert for the Parent-Teacher Association at 7:30 p.m. March 1 at the school.

Appearing with the orchestra will be David Wilde, Tony Gallo, Roberta Kohl, Donald Mottolo, Karen Hagg, Kent Hedrick, Kenneth Traub, Bruce Greenbaum, David Perron, Michael Lynch, John Lynch, Steven Ketzler and accompanists, Cathy Hill and Nancy Hood.

It strikes us that never did we see so many women in slacks, thin and tall ones, fat and small ones, as have been strolling through town lately. Rumor hath it they are all air raid wardens, but there just can't be that many of them. Rumor also hath it that they wear 'embroidered' stockings, but better slacks than slacks, we figure. Now on view at the Addison Gallery, Phillips Academy is an exhibition produced by the staff of the Addison Gallery and the Phillips Academy art department especially Christopher Coe, Gerald Shertzer and Robert Lloy with works contributed by students in the Studio Art Course. FEELIES... "the nature of things perceived through touch" might also be called "through a window" or "in a glass infinitely". Installed in four of the Addison Gallery's exhibition rooms, the exhibition - or excursion - leads the visitor through a labyrinth of felt sensations - past surfaces which he touches and others which touch him (some objects must be touched to be identified at all) into a room the entire surface of which becomes a vast and intricate texture through the chance accumulation of things (even sound and scents) where, curiously, the total effect is so overwhelming one is not inclined to touch it simply to gaze and wonder. Here the eye and the mind finally seek over and identify the parts from the whole. The unexpected juxtaposition of objects adds to the mystery of their separate identities.

Room #3 is as orderly as Room #2 is unpredictable. Panels, individually produced by Phillips Academy students using such familiar materials as paper cups, straws, shavings, hair, bottle caps, or wool line one wall. Opposite, a bin in which one may feel noodle or cotton balls, or other materials. There are drawings which trompe l'oeils in reverse (e.g., 12 times life-sized portrait he made - like a printed photograph of dots). Here, things often are what they seem, a phenomenon most vividly demonstrated in elegant alcove of mirrors, so ranged and angled as to represent surfaces forever - including visitor himself - all seeming real but untouchable. Once again the eye and the mind rather than the hand finally discriminate to determine the true nature of what is presented.

The 4th Room is the distillation or synthesis - of all the previous sensations, tactile, kinesthetic, intellectual, by the 22 artists whose works are shown. Here, the aesthetic of "the nature of things perceived through touch" is developed in a variety of ways, as different but each as valid - as the work of George Rieck or Richard P.

Exeter Hikes Annual Fee

The Annual Charge at The Phillips Exeter Academy has been increased to $2,500 for the 1967-1968 school year.

In the past ten years, an announcement from the school reports, "the cost of educating a student at Exeter has risen 73 percent." Income from the annual charge to parents has risen by only 32 percent in the same period. Ten years ago, the charge was $1,600, raised to $1,800 in 1959, and to $2,100 in 1963, the present level. The total cost to operate the Academy for the 1965-1966 school year was in excess of $4 million, up from $2.6 million ten years ago.

Notice of the increase has been mailed to parents of the 800 boys now in the Academy. At the same time, parents of 350 boys offered admission for the next school year were also notified. Successful candidates for next year were chosen from more than 1,500 who applied.

"Parents who will find this increase difficult to meet," the letter said, "should not hesitate to write to the Director of Admissions and Scholarships for details about the scholarship program." More than $325,000 has been awarded to 216 scholarship boys now in school. These include 51 boarding students and 11 day students receiving an award equal to the total charge.

Lake Appears In Class Play

H. Tucker Lake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert T. Lake of 22 Greenwood Rd., and a sophomore at Principia College, Elmhurst, Ill., was a member of the cast of characters in the annual sophomore production.

He played the part of a turtle in the original comedy, "Where Were You When the Lights Went Out?", which was written and produced entirely by the sophomore class. It was a takeoff on Peter Pan combined with the New York black-out.

BUSINESS PROFILESARLINGTON FLOOR COVERING*Come In And See Our Carpet Displays

The homes of today require floor coverings that are not only luxurious but serviceable. To obtain these features you must do business with a firm that has an impeccable reputation for quality and service. You will find all this and more at Arlington Floor Covering Company, located at 100 Franklin Street in the heart of Lawrence. Ed Traub, owner of the Arlington Floor Company, started in business in 1951 in the Arlington Mill district. He is married, the father of four children and has lived in this area all his life. This is a reliable firm, owned by a local man who stands behind his work in both home and commercial floor covering.

In 1963, because of increased business, Arlington Floor Covering moved into a beautiful new building four times larger and more centrally located in a shopping complex with parking on all sides. From this location, Mr. Traub is able to serve not only the Merrimack Valley, but also Reading, Salem, N. H. and other towns north of Boston.

Arlington Floor Covering is now in the process of enlarging its carpeting department to meet the increased demand of its customers.

Stop in soon and see one of the prettiest selections of quality carpeting in town, beautiful displays in such well-known brands as Gulistan, Barwick, Aldon, Roxbury, Loomweave, Beattie, Viking and Ozite. You may choose from all wool, nylon or acrilan in a host of colors and textures, including twists, scrolls, loops and plush.

In tiles and inlaid floor covering, you will see such names as Armstrong, Congoleum, Antigo, Kentile and Robbins. Arlington Floor Covering has its own craftsmen do all the installation work, whether it is carpeting, formica counters, ceramic wall tile or inlaid linoleum. In this way, they can guarantee all work to your complete satisfaction. They also have a complete line of ceramics and mosaics for walls and floors for do-it-yourself projects.

Call any time for a free estimate and discover this unusual business that has built its fine reputation over the past 15 years by word of mouth from one satisfied customer to another. Arlington Floor Covering, 100 Franklin Street in Lawrence, is open Tuesday and Friday evenings until nine.

Crossing Law Said Violated

"The Registry has received alarmingly increased reports of complete disregard of the law requiring certain vehicles to halt before entering railroad grade crossings," Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin reports.

The Registrar states that Massachusetts law requires all school buses or motor vehicles carrying explosives or inflammable liquid as cargo to come to a FULL STOP before entering the grade crossing and to resume movement only after the driver has satisfied himself that it is safe to do so.

The law requires all vehicles of any type to reduce speed before proceeding through railroad grade crossings and to come to a FULL STOP when red lights are flashing or a crossing gate is lowered.

IRS DEDICATION

ters, the Andover facility processes returns filed by taxpayers in the IRS North Atlantic Region. This area includes Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Last year, $31 billion was collected with 17,641,710 returns filed by taxpayers in this region. This is the largest total internal revenue collection for any of the seven IRS regions, and also the greatest number of returns filed in any one region.

Revenue collection in the North Atlantic Region represents approximately 25 percent of the total taxes for the United States. The number of returns filed in this region is about 17 percent of the total filed in the United States.

Tax Sources

Revenue collections consisted of $9,554,302,000 in corporation income tax, $18,978,048,000 in individual income and employment taxes, $688,651,000 in estate tax, $96,651,000 in gift tax, and $1,763,541,000 in total excise taxes.

Last year $1 billion including interest, was refunded to taxpayers in the North Atlantic Region.

The new North Atlantic ADP center will, like the six other IRS regional service centers, process all income tax returns filed within the districts. This center serves the IRS districts with headquarters at Albany, New York, Augusta, Maine, Boston, Mass., Brooklyn, New York, Buffalo, New York, Burlington, Vermont, Hartford, Conn., Manhattan, Portsmouth, New Hampshire and Providence, Rhode Island.

District offices gradually will be relieved of much of the returns processing workload as they receive returns and supporting documents and forward them to the service center. The districts will be free for more taxpayers assistance, answering taxpayer inquiries in person, or the telephone and through correspondence, and carrying out audit, collection and intelligence activities.

The North Atlantic regional office, with headquarters in New York City, administers the overall collection, audit, intelligence, appellate, alcohol and tobacco tax, and administrative programs for the IRS in the seven states.

The IRS computer system serves to identify nonfilers, verify data on returns, check outstanding accounts before issuing refunds, stop duplicate refunds, match documents with returns and help classify returns for audit.

DASA Acquires New Division

Shareholders of Image Instruments Inc. of Waltham, have approved the acquisition of their company by DASA Corp. of Andover, it was announced Tuesday by Richard S. Leghorn, DASA president.

Under the terms of the acquisition, which earlier had been approved by the directors of both companies, Image stockholders will receive one share of DASA common stock for each four shares of Image stock.

As an autonomous operating division of DASA, Image will continue its work in the technology of information processing through use of electronic storage tubes.

DASA Corporation manufactures and markets "information appliances" in three business areas: dialer products for the telephone industry; digital products for data communications purposes; and electronic and microfilm image handling products for use by business and government.

Charter Is Topic For 5 Candidates

This is the question the League of Women Voters has asked candidates for the Board of Selectmen to discuss March 2 at the second of two Candidates' Night programs. Candidates for the Board and the School Committee will speak at Central School beginning at 8 p.m.

This is the last public forum scheduled before the town election on March 6.
